

reconnect

the green living magazine for Exeter, Plymouth and South Devon

Project makes its mark

AN international social arts project is quickly gathering momentum after its launch in Totnes.

In Your Own Skin invites people to share something about themselves that is normally hidden – then to encapsulate that “hidden treasure” in one word or phrase and have it painted onto their skin.

The project creator, Katheryn Trenshaw, then photographs the result and will use the hugely powerful images in a book and to make a community art exhibition.

The process will also be captured in a documentary film and the technique will be explored by people all over the world in workshops.

“Our launch evening was an exciting, inspiring and very moving sell-out success,” said Katheryn.

“People were very excited by the project, and the next stage, getting funding to make the film, is already underway,” said Katheryn.

The next big In Your Own Skin event is on Thursday, October 18, in the Totnes Civic Hall with live music, more film, Five Rhythms dancing, a raffle and more.

To donate to the film-making fund, and to find out more about the project (which Katheryn tells us has been endorsed by “the inner Transition group”), visit www.inyourownskin.org.